Mustafa Jouni was born in Lebanon. He traveled to Italy to study Engineering. He then returned to his homeland where he excelled in teaching, public service and business. The author's memories in Italy turned with time into nostalgia, which in turn drove him to write them down as short stories book titled "The Thief Of Rome". The book, originally in Arabic, was translated into Italian and English, and the author has more works in the pipeline, in multiple languages. In his words: "My body may certainly end up buried in the land of my ancestors, but my soul will forever roam the skies of Italy, especially my beloved Rome. This fair fate was the first thought I had when I returned home, and it's a dream I've been having since."

As you prepare to become a mother, you face an experience unlike any other in your life. Having a baby will redirect your preferences and pleasures and, most likely, will realign some of your values. As you undergo this unique psychological transformation, you will be guided by new hopes, fears, and priorities. In a most startling way, having a child will influence all of your closest relationships and redefine your role in your family's history. The charting of this remarkable, new realm is the subject of this compelling book. Renowned psychiatrist Daniel N. Stern has joined forces with pediatrician and child psychiatrist Nadia Bruschiweiler-Stern and journalist Alison Freeland to paint a wonderfully evocative picture of the psychology of motherhood. At the heart of The Birth of a Mother is an arresting premise: Just as a baby develops physically in utero and after birth, so a mother is born psychologically in the many months that precede and follow the birth of her baby. The recognition of this inner transformation emerges from hundreds of interviews with new mothers and decades of clinical experience. Filled with revealing case studies and personal comments from women who have shared this experience, this book will serve as an invaluable sourcebook for new mothers, validating the often confusing emotions that accompany the development of this new identity. In addition to providing insight into the unique state of motherhood, the authors touch on related topics such as going back to work, fatherhood, adoption, and premature birth. During pregnancy, mothers-to-be talk about morning sickness and their changing bodies, and new mothers talk about their exhaustion, the benefits of nursing or bottle-feeding, and the dilemma of whether or when they should return to work. And yet, they can be strangely mute about the dramatic and often overwhelming changes going on in their inner lives. Finally, with The Birth of a Mother, these powerful feelings are eloquently put into words.

Edizioni Corraini's Bruno Munari Workshopseries focuses on a variety of creative tasks and skills that inspire the active involvement of adults and children alike--flower arranging, in this case. In A Flower with Love, the beloved Italian artist and designer lets us in on the secret: "...what really matters is the love with which a little daisy, a lavender sprig or some moss are chosen, that one there in particular and not that other one." With full-color images of Munari's whimsical and inventive creations in each spread, we learn that flower arranging is not an obscure art but a natural gesture requiring more care and imagination than money. Munari's examples are not to be copied slavishly; they represent examples to aid the reader in uncovering their own natural aesthetic sensibilities.

This book tells the story of a painting that was recognized as carrying the signature of Michelangelo Buonarroti in 1868 by his greatest expert of the 19th century, Hermann Grimm. After being exhibited at the Metropolitan Museum in New York in 1886, attributed to the same painter, the painting then disappeared without trace. In 2010, the panel was brought to the attention of art historians once again, after a careful document research traced its history, from the Italian Renaissance workshop that brought the painting to life in the mid sixteenth century, to the Bishopric of Ragusa in Dalmatia, where it was located at the beginning of the seventeenth century and from there to museums in Berlin and New York. The terrible condition in which the painting was found, however, prevented any formal clarification of identity. For this reason, the small panel was returned to Italy in 2011, for it to be restored under the supervision of the ISCR in Rome, thanks to financial support from the Rome Foundation. At this point, after cleaning, the painting was presented to the Italian public during the exhibition organized in the capital called The Renaissance in Rome. From Michelangelo to Raphael, at the Foundation's museum in Palazzo Sciarra.

This book shows the results of the diagnostic tests, the comparisons of styles and techniques, the iconographic studies that allow the documents and the critical matter of the painting to be systematized. In these pages, experts and the fans of Italian Renaissance art will find so much material to enrich and feed the scientific debate about whether the painting truly is by Michelangelo's hand.
